Short title of proposed plan of study:

Description:

Harvard policy states “Course heads should not assign any work to be done during the Examination Period. Faculty policy stipulates that this time should be reserved for standard three-hour exams. Any work assigned as a substitution for a midyear or final examination [such as final research papers] must be completed before the end of Reading Period.”

In applying for this reading course, I understand that I will be expected to complete a substantial research paper (approximately 30 pages). I agree to submit this paper to my adviser during Reading Period. I understand that my adviser determines a due date that allows him/her enough time to read and grade the paper by the beginning of the examination period.
